Fire broke out about six o'clock last night in a two-storey building occupied as a jostpaper and cracker store, No. 145 Bonham Strand West. Originating in the cock-loft of the upper floor (from what cause is not yet known) the fire made but slow progress among the closely packed materials there, consisting largely of bales of paper, and was not allowed to spread much beyond that place. The Nam Pak Hong Brigade had a hose playing on the house immediately after the alarm was given. The Government Brigade, under Assistant Superintendent Horspool, soon reached the spot and a plentiful supply of water was obtained from two street hydrants, only one engine was brought into The stock in the place not destroyed by fire was spoiled by water and the damare is therefore considerable. The premises were insured for $4,000 with a company represented by Messa Scheele and Co. At the time the alarm was given a num- | Kong Chiu, a Chinaman named Ho ber of French sailors who were in the Sing had a wife and a child about neighbourhood rushed upstairs, and rumour that one of them was buried by the fall o. the roof gained some credence, and a squad of men cleared away sev- hold of the hands of his wife and made her eral tons of debris looking for his body. We have nothing to say against private individuals shooting at the ranges on Sunday, if they consider that they derive a different thing for a body under Government control to hold a prize meeting on Sunday. The proceeding is so foreign to English sentiment that the Governor, as head of a Orown Colony under English rule, might have refused to sanction it. At the same time, it must be borne in mind that the competition referred to was a semi-official affair, belonging, as it did, to what is known as the work of the Recreation Committee, although, as a matter of courtesy, it was ant of the Corps. The promoters of the Prize meeting maintain that it was found impossible to hold it on any other day than Sunday morning, and that in this respect it was regarded as a necessity. We do not (Sing. pore.) suppose that the occurrence is other than exceptional, and it is certainly to be desired that, whatever private persons may think concerning Sunday observance, the Corps will avoid active service on that day. His Excellency the Governor, however, could not appopriately sasume a very severe attitude towards the Volunteers, after taking up the position he has done upon the question of unnecessary Sunday labour in the Harbour. It may be alleged, indeed, by P. Chater, Hon. J. J. Keswick; and Mr those who see no religious, philosophical, or physical gold it a seventh-day rest, that the Coloniali Chaplain had no right as a public office to enter any protest against recreation being indulged in on Sunday by a Corps which is partially supported by the public money. And if it be true, that the Governor, although in a sense Defender of the Faith as the Queen's Representative first reading of a bill to amend the law rein this Colony, has announced views regarding Sunday work which are repugnant to the teaching of the Church of England, it would also seem to be the duty of the Colonial Chaplain to enter his protest, on behalf of his Church against and to une his plea in fayour of the poor follows who are deprived of the Sanday rest so soon as they come to this Colony.

Mr Wotton said he would produce some further evidence with respect to a search of the prisoner's box, which was made on the Slat March, but was not mentioned when the case was last before the Court. Sergeant Detective Mann said-On 31st March a robbery from the Hongkong Hotel took place, and several things were said to have been stolen from Miss Amy Sherwin who was then living there. I went to the hotel, and anthe prisoner was in chargeof the rooms and had a duplicate key I searched his box, but I saw neither the Waterbury watch now in Court, nor the spirit.

Detective Sergt. McDonald -I found the lampand cigarette-holder at the same time as the watch in the prisoner's box. He said living in the hotel. He said the cigarettebolder had been given to him by another mention in connection with the case that robberies in the Hotel had been frequent and serious of late, and a large amount of property had been taken from places close to the hotel also. It was very difficult. of course, where the victims of these rubberies were people merely passing through the colony, to trace the criminals in time for evidence to be forthcoming to show the ownership of the property, and frequently rersons who would otherwise have been convicted got off in consequence of this. He mentioned these facts in order that his Worship, if he adjourned the case for the return of the owner of the watch in question, should impose a heavy bail, as it was most desirable that this man should be forthcoming on the next occasion. He therefore asked that the bail be increased. Mr Caldwell had no objection to the adjournment, but he thought the bail previously fixed, $300, was sufficient. Mr Wotton said when he asked for the increase of the bail it was not so much on account of the value of the articles before the Court as it was for the fact that they pointed to other robberies that had been committed, which ought to open his Worship's mind to the fact that if this man had committed this robbery, in all probability there were others that would be aid at his door.

His Worship increased the bail to $500, the case being adjourned for a week.

2. As regards the incidents alleged to have taken place at the French Consulate and on board the Messageries Maritimes Natal, I am satisfied that the French Consul's version of the affair is strictly privileges accorded to Franch Mail attering or bringing into circulation. for his discretion whether the process of or falsified papers. the Supreme Court of the Colony shall be Embezzlement or larceny. served on the Menagerics Maritimes Steamers or not, it is im, esable for me to follow him in his contention.

3. In view of the fact that there is. the spirit-lamp had been given to him by understand, no real reciprocity in this an American gentleman who had been matter, it is humiliating enough that the exercise of the jurisdiction of our Courts within our own waters should be even numinally subject to the discretion of a Mr Wotton asked that the case should be | Foreign Cousul. 4. Under the circumstances I venture to suggest, as worthy of enquiry and of the consideration of Her Majesty's Government the question :attempting to do so.

(1.) Whether the privilege of exterritoriality is inpractice extended to British Mail Steamers in Foreign

Ports:

(2) Even if it is whether advantage preponderate on the side of Foreign master. Powers and against Great Britain; (3.) Whether it is in principle just that this privilege should be extended to ressels competing in respect of cargo and passengers with others which are without it; and

(4.) Even if the privilege must be maintained, whether it should not in the case of France be subject to an arrangement similar to that already made with Germany and described by Lord Rosebery in his despatch to Count Hatzfeldt, dated 26th pril. 1886. lency spoke with extraordinary fire and animation, and his remarks were received with uproarious cheers. Sir William Jerrois said he fully agreed that arbitraion was desirable, but that so long as humanity and human passions remained as they were war could not be avoided. He quoted the old Latin proverb & vis pacem, para bellum, and mentioned that even in these remote colonies it was absolutely necossary to proper against the descent of a hostile force. He knew positively that about ten years ago a Power with which England was nearly at war had made complete preparations for a descent on all the: unprotected parts of these colonies. He: could give them chapter and verse for that. if it were necessary. As it was, this colony had provided more defences, and was, in his opinion, very nearly prepared to meet such foes as might possibly come in case of war. He said by all means settle things by arbitration if you can, but if that fails. then you must be prepared, in the last resource, to say 'I defy you,' and that meant war. Mr Jones, in seconding a vote of thanks to the Governor for presiding, differed from some of His Excellency's views. and this brought up Sir William again. He said they could not eradicate human passions, and these would inevitably lead to wars until the millennium arrived.' He added. 'I waitthe millennium.' There was Threats by letter or otherwise with ina crowded audience which went strongly with the Governor.
